

Justin Lee Steffen was born in Glenwood Springs, CO on March 24, 1985 and lived in Rifle until he left to attend UNC in 2003. He graduated with a double Major in Journalism and Psychology in 2007, and died just a few short months later on September 28 in Greeley, CO.

He was born a natural journalist and began writing at a very young age. After winning an opportunity to be an announcer for a Rockies game through the Young Sportscaster's Association, his desire to become a journalist increased exponentially. Throughout his life he had many experiences that brought him back to journalism and the media environment. As he once said, "He didn't choose journalism, journalism chose him".

As a mentor to underprivileged youth and an accomplished journalist, he influenced countless lives at UNC and within the Greeley community in four short years. He wanted to right all the wrongs and strongly believed in creating good Karma. His lively spirit and compassion for life is carried on within many.

This foundation has been established in Justin's name to provide annual scholarships to Journalism students and support to the organizations he believed in.

Justin Lee Steffen was born in Glenwood Springs, CO on March 24, 1985 and lived in Rifle until he left to attend UNC in 2003. He graduated with a double Major in Journalism and Psychology in 2007, and died just a few short months later on September 28 in Greeley, CO.

He was born a natural journalist and began writing at a very young age. After winning an opportunity to be an announcer for a Rockies game through the Young Sportscaster's Association, his desire to become a journalist increased exponentially. Throughout his life he had many experiences that brought him back to journalism and the media environment. As he once said, "He didn't choose journalism, journalism chose him".

As a mentor to underprivileged youth and an accomplished journalist, he influenced countless lives at UNC and within the Greeley community in four short years. He wanted to right all the wrongs and strongly believed in creating good Karma. His lively spirit and compassion for life is carried on within many.

This foundation has been established in Justin's name to provide annual scholarships to Journalism students and support to the organizations he believed in.

Justin Lee Steffen was born in Glenwood Springs, CO on March 24, 1985 and lived in Rifle until he left to attend UNC in 2003. He graduated with a double Major in Journalism and Psychology in 2007, and died just a few short months later on September 28 in Greeley, CO.

He was born a natural journalist and began writing at a very young age. After winning an opportunity to be an announcer for a Rockies game through the Young Sportscaster's Association, his desire to become a journalist increased exponentially. Throughout his life he had many experiences that brought him back to journalism and the media environment. As he once said, "He didn't choose journalism, journalism chose him".

As a mentor to underprivileged youth and an accomplished journalist, he influenced countless lives at UNC and within the Greeley community in four short years. He wanted to right all the wrongs and strongly believed in creating good Karma. His lively spirit and compassion for life is carried on within many.

This foundation has been established in Justin's name to provide annual scholarships to Journalism students and support to the organizations he believed in.

Justin Lee Steffen was born in Glenwood Springs, CO on March 24, 1985 and lived in Rifle until he left to attend UNC in 2003. He graduated with a double Major in Journalism and Psychology in 2007, and died just a few short months later on September 28 in Greeley, CO.

He was born a natural journalist and began writing at a very young age. After winning an opportunity to be an announcer for a Rockies game through the Young Sportscaster's Association, his desire to become a journalist increased exponentially. Throughout his life he had many experiences that brought him back to journalism and the media environment. As he once said, "He didn't choose journalism, journalism chose him".

As a mentor to underprivileged youth and an accomplished journalist, he influenced countless lives at UNC and within the Greeley community in four short years. He wanted to right all the wrongs and strongly believed in creating good Karma. His lively spirit and compassion for life is carried on within many.

This foundation has been established in Justin's name to provide annual scholarships to Journalism students and support to the organizations he believed in.

The 2nd Annual Scramble Golf Tournament Fundraiser

to benefit the
Justin Lee Steffen
Memorial Scholarship Foundation

Rifle Creek Golf Course
Saturday, October 2, 2010

Don't miss out
on this great event for a great cause!

The 2nd Annual Scramble Golf Tournament Fundraiser

to benefit the
Justin Lee Steffen
Memorial Scholarship Foundation

Rifle Creek Golf Course
Saturday, October 2, 2010

Don't miss out
on this great event for a great cause!

The 2nd Annual Scramble Golf Tournament Fundraiser

to benefit the
Justin Lee Steffen
Memorial Scholarship Foundation

Rifle Creek Golf Course
Saturday, October 2, 2010

Don't miss out
on this great event for a great cause!

The 2nd Annual Scramble Golf Tournament Fundraiser

to benefit the
Justin Lee Steffen
Memorial Scholarship Foundation

Rifle Creek Golf Course
Saturday, October 2, 2010

Don't miss out
on this great event for a great cause!